

News From Nowhere

News From Nowhere Radical & Community Bookshop is a women's worker Co-operative that has served Liverpool, the North West, and beyond, with the best in radical literature since 1974. It's run on a not-for-profit basis by News From Nowhere Co-operative and is registered as a not-for-profit co-operative under the Industrial & Provident Societies Act.

What's so radical about News From Nowhere?

The books they stock & the way they work mean that they are not your average bookshop. They are:

- A workers' co-operative - The bookshop is owned & managed collectively by the paid workers - tasks, responsibilities & decision-making are shared.
- Not for profit - No-one makes money out of the bookshop. Any profit remains within the business, paying for essential running costs & building up our stock. (Workers earn equal rates of pay - currently minimum wage.)
- Committed to social change - They hope that the literature they stock empowers & inspires people to make positive changes to the world - from challenging the power of corporate capitalism to breaking down prejudiced attitudes to others & ourselves. Over the years They've supported and promoted many struggles for justice - including anti-apartheid, Troops Out (of Ireland), the Liverpool Dockers, and currently the Stop the War campaign. We refuse to stock anything that is oppressive - racist, sexist, homophobic or otherwise.
